

THE PURSUIT OF HUMILITY

- Do you see your pride and does it grieve you?
- Are you more joyful when you're impressed by God or when others are impressed by you?
- When confronted, do you immediately defend yourself or patiently listen for truth you can grow from?
- Do those close to you correct you/question you often, or they not have much to say that disagrees with you?
- In conversations, are you better at listening or talking?
- Does your idea usually win, or do you often yield to the ideas of others?
- When you make a mistake, are you better at making an apology or making an excuse?
- Do you seek for someone else to get the credit or strive to get the credit yourself?
- Do you most often talk about your strengths or your weaknesses?
- When it comes to your impressions of others, are you more likely to be gracious or to be critical?
- Do you dwell more on your own needs and desires or the needs and desires of others?
- Are you more motivated by God seeing your righteousness or others seeing your righteousness?
